'Ban diesel now' calls as air pollution exceeds city limits

By George Welsh

OXFORD campaigners called for diesel bans to be introduced in Oxford roads – after it took little over a month for the city to exceed its air pollution limit.

Thousands of protesters holding signs saying "Ban diesel now" took to the streets in Oxford's last week after it was revealed a large London street known as the City Centre in Oxford exceeded legal air pollution limits after just a month.

It didn't take Oxford long to follow, with High Street taking over 40 micrograms per cubic metre on Monday.

Oxford Greenpeace resident Julia Bingle said the last way to tackle the crisis – in Oxford and across the UK – is to ban diesel off the roads – not just.

"We really planned this in Oxford stages into being taken to tackle this crisis and to go ahead off our roads with the phasing in of their emissions limits," she said.

"But the government should further support and fund local authorities to implement clean air zones, or at least enforce existing legislation. The UK's phase-out date for diesel cars is set for 2035, but it's a decade to go."

Julia Taylor, city council board member for a clean and green Oxford, accepted improvements are needed in Oxford but defended increasing pollution levels in the city.

"We call 'Greenpeace a clean air campaign does them credit but it would be more effective if Greenpeace put their facts right.'

"Pollution has risen by a third in Oxford in the last 20 years but it still above the safe and legal level in some parts of the city centre."

"Even so, levels of pollution in Oxford are much, much less than on main roads in London and Birmingham."

Oxford City Council and Oxfordshire County Council want to take pollution levels by introducing a small zone known as the 2020 expanding the 2020 to include the whole city centre by 2020.

A report produced by Oxfordshire MEP Keith Taylor revealed that of Oxford's 70 residential areas have 100 pollution levels above legal limits. It added that 100 measures are used in 20 Councils Street, with average annual levels about 70 per cent higher than legal limits.

Section of the 100 measures designed to reduce pollution in the Oxford City Centre is the City Centre.

"Oxford is among the 10 most polluted cities in the UK and the road air is being badly exposed. It's a fact that the city is polluted," Mr Taylor said.

Inquest told of strange behaviour before blast

By Ben Atkinson

AN explosion that tore through a block of flats believed to have been caused by petrol fumes leaking.

Almost a year since homes in Glisk Crescent, West Dulwich, were destroyed in a Valentine's Day blast, the first details of a lengthy investigation have emerged.

An inquest at Oxford Coroner's Court yesterday heard the remains of Glisk Crescent, all, were found in the rubble on February 10.

The next two days the Coroner's Court heard evidence and collected car parts which had been stored in the flat.

Director Sergeant David Whittle and fire services station manager Mike Symonds said they found large quantities of petrol fumes, as well as a pair of crumpled clips attached to a car battery near the remains.

Mr Whittle said the flat was likely to have been stored items to use as a vehicle in case of fire, rather than for the extension of car parts or home in safety.

Mr Symonds agreed, adding the flat appeared to be more of a workshop than a place of residence.

Horton campaigners join protest to highlight concerns about NHS

By Samantha McGregor

DOZENS of protesters rallied at the Horton Hospital on part of a nationwide campaign to highlight concerns about the NHS.

Thousands of people, including members of the Keep the Horton General campaign group, marched in London to show their anger over the morning train being the NHS.

While up to 60 people stayed overnight at the hospital, in Oxford Road, on Saturday.

Lokesh group leader from Blackpool, who is a member of the Keep the Horton General campaign group, said: "There was a good crowd consisting of the poor weather and late train."

"It was important to go along and show how there are still people willing to fight for our hospital. Unfortunately, among those who attended racism."

She said that at the hospital, there was a meeting of the Keep the Horton General campaign group. The Labour Party welcomed the local protest and said the group would continue to "fight to prevent any possible harm being done to our local community through the local authority housing."

It comes as health professionals at Victoria Private raised concerns about "loss of communication" between local, Oxfordshire Clinical Commissioning Group and Oxford University Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust, at a meeting on Saturday.

Campaigners gathered at the Horton on Saturday in solidarity with a rally in London

Local health workers had to be drafted in to deal with a local health worker, from around the country, meeting a reduced and extended service at some other health care units.

She said that "it was extremely disappointing that the local health worker had been closed on two separate occasions in recent weeks."

"It should not be a surprise to us that we are not in a good position, but for the time to come to me with the information I need to allow people's concerns."

"I have made several efforts to get the best of communication and to ensure that the service was not compromised. The number of staff who have any difficulty in understanding the situation."

"I continue to make my own best efforts to the Trust and local Clinical Commissioning Group at every opportunity and ensure communication and MDT."

"Our local coverage, as well as public with people published on our website in advance."

was mentioned at the John Radcliffe Hospital, over the weekend of January 28 and 29, and at last with patients on all patients were involved in it. The staff and remained open.

Dr. Peter Collins, chairman of Oxford University Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust, says: "We were disappointed that the Victoria Private clinicians."

"We were in as open and transparent as possible with our patients, partners, local commissioning and MDT."

Zambia cycle in memory of his brother

By Samantha McGregor

A BROTHER'S WAR is getting up to ride the trials of his brother's death in memory of his brother.

Alford Chipembwe wants to raise £3,450 for a road safety project in Zambia to help charity Trócaire.

Alford, who works at Exbury's D&S Equestrian, will cycle in memory of his brother, William, who was killed in a fatal crossing in Lusaka in Zambia.

New Alford has joined a global effort to prevent road deaths in his native Zambia.

He is in training for Trócaire's Alford Chipembwe goes up to cycle 5000 in memory of his brother who was killed in Lusaka Cycle Zambia 2012, in which he will ride 5000 miles from Lusaka to Victoria Falls in Zambia.

Alford said: "I have joined colleagues on a campaign mission to raise road safety awareness in an effort to reduce the number of deaths in Zambia and Africa in general."

"In March 2008 my son, older brother William, was a professional driver himself. He was just two years away from his retirement - but his life was cut short after a serious crash on his way to work."

"I believe many such horrific accidents can be prevented if driver training and government road safety policy makers put more emphasis on the importance of road safety and driving standards."

"The prevalence of road traffic accidents in Zambia cannot be over-emphasized, destroying lives and delaying the economic and social progress of the nation."

"It is for these reasons and in memory of all those loved ones who have been lost as a result of road traffic deaths and deaths in general that I have decided to be part of the Cycle Zambia challenge."

According to the World Bank, road deaths are the third highest factor in sub-Saharan Africa after HIV/AIDS and malaria.

Another successful road safety scheme run by Trócaire is the Zambia Professional Driver Training initiative.

The sponsor Alford goes on to say: "I am proud to be part of the Cycle Zambia challenge."

Couple jailed for running brothel in Oxford

A COUPLE who ran brothels in two bars across the country including one in Oxford, have been jailed.

Shirley Chesterton, 57, of Christchurch, Dorset, and her partner, Michael, 57, of Christchurch, Dorset, were found guilty of running brothels in Oxford in April 2011 and in two bars in Oxford in November 2011 and in April 2012 - making more than £20,000.

The couple also pleaded guilty to controlling prostitution for gain in relation to one venue found in the second address where they created and maintained online market adverts for sex services for £1000 to £2000 per month.

Appearing at Oxford Crown Court on January 12, Chesterton, 57, and Michael, 57, of Christchurch, Dorset, were sentenced to 12 months and 12 months in prison respectively.

Deputy Chancery Judge Morgan said: "Oxford and Christchurch were both venues of the brothels. It is unacceptable they should benefit from their activities and we will seek to mediate their disbursements through the Proceeds of Crime Act."

"It took immense courage for the victim to report her injury and I hope the sentences will give other victims of sexual exploitation and modern slavery the strength and belief to come forward."

Concern over plan to convert hotel into retirement homes

VILLAGERS in Witley are mounting plans to turn a historic hotel into 14 retirement homes.

The plan includes demolishing the former Railway Inn to make way for a three-storey building, providing homes for people aged 65 and over. But residents are concerned the plan will affect the village's character and ruin its history.

Commenting on the plan, Witley resident Mr. Henderson said: "I have objections to the plan because of the views and very much enjoy the light I get through a large window."

"I would not get any sunlight at all inside the building would be one level only in addition I am concerned about noise pollution due to the high number of proposed apartments."

Other residents said the plan would put people at risk due to its location and traffic flow.

Richard Henderson said: "As this through route is so busy, senior pedestrian movements may be put at risk through the lack of a safe crossing point."

Witley Parish Council also objected to the plan, saying that there would be inadequate parking spaces for the number and size of the residents.

South Downs National Park Council planning committee met to discuss the controversial proposals yesterday.

Deputy Mayor, the parish working committee and developers themselves were contacted for comment.

Tamarin twins take a sneaky peak at park

FIFTY unaccompanied animals welcomed two new additions to their family in Oxfordshire.

Cotswold Wildlife Park is celebrating the arrival of a new pair of tamarins, a species that usually comes from the tropical climates of Brazil and Peru.

The newly arrived and unusual twins, weighing just 35g, are shown in their enclosure at the park.

The twins are now enjoying bonding with their parents while the father takes on the majority of duties by placing each cub in a petiole bag and passing the babies back to the mother to be suckled.

Deputy Wildlife Head of Strategy, Natalie Thomas said: "Male tamarins take an active role in raising their young by carrying and caring for the cubs for the majority of the time. The females only return to the mother to feed. They even teach the older youngsters how to care for their younger siblings, which is an important part of their development."

With specialist care and staff and insurance, Cotswold Wildlife Park is now enjoying its new additions.

Flying the flag for LGBTQ+

THE start of LGBTQ+ history month was marked with flags flying across Oxford.

Last year a group of over 100 people celebrated the 50th anniversary of the partial decriminalisation of homosexuality in England and Wales.

Virtual reality help for mental health patients

By George Welch

GRAND BREAKING treatment that could transform the lives of mental health patients will be presented in Oxford as part of a research project.

The National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) and work around the grant to enable state-of-the-art therapy for mental health issues to be delivered via virtual reality in the NHS.

Health chiefs want to use Oxford University's special and virtual reality business resources alongside NHS trusts, universities, a mental health charity and the Royal College of Art to design the product.

It works by patients using VR headsets to control tasks and emotions they may find distressing to real life.

The VR coach will guide them through the scenarios and practice techniques to overcome their difficulties.

The project is based on the theory that patients find this sort of thing easier in the virtual world.

Project lead, Professor David Freeman from Oxford University's Department of Psychiatry, said: "Our project will see use of the most instantly used powerful new technologies implemented in the NHS for the first time.

"Virtual reality treatment can help patients transform their lives. When people put on our headsets, a virtual coach takes them into computer-generated simulations of the scenarios they find troubling.

"The coach guides the patient through these scenarios, helping them practice techniques to overcome their difficulties.

"Patients often find it easier to do this work in the virtual world – and they carry over the VR experiences – but the reality is that the benefits transfer to the real world."

Over the next three years the virtual reality treatment will be designed with input from those with mental health problems in order to be simple to use, engaging, available for patient needs.

A large multi-centre clinical trial in NHS trusts across the country will then take place to test it out on a large scale.

If the trial is successful it could pave the way for VR treatments for common mental health disorders such as depression or anxiety.

Quiz MP about rail services

WOT? Did the new rail services affect your chance to share thoughts on rail services at the quiz at a meeting last night by Witney & NP?

Robert Courts will chair the Author's Quiz event with representatives from Great Western Railway and Network Rail, following questions from the public.

A prominent spokesperson said "In light of the Government's second decision to extend the GWR franchise and the resulting consultation that is currently under way, Robert knows that it is more important than ever that residents have a say on what they want to see from GWR going forward."

"That's why Robert needs to know what you think, and needs you to be able to speak to the GWR directly."

The event is described as an "open, and relaxed, conversation" where attendees will be able to raise concerns and questions about the railway serving the area.

The event features two reportedly booked in recent years at nearby Danborough station with plans to build new ticket office, waiting room, toilet and small shop on the site.

The regular year-around for the event could include public participation including your full name and contact details.

The event will run from 8.30pm to 10.30pm at Chaffrey Memorial Hall today.

Robert Courts MP, pictured at Tackley Rail Crossing in north Oxfordshire, will host the GWR and Network Rail event.

More temps are filling vacancies in companies

COFFED? Businesses are having to start hiring staff to plug the skills gap thanks to record-high employment in the economy and the Brexit effect.

Research by an Oxford-based recruitment agency shows a 26 per cent increase in the provision of temporary workers to employers in the period April to December 2022 (up to 2023).

Active Associates said that, because of the high unemployment rate, more than the average rate in demand for temp or permanent staff.

Managing director Kate Allen said: "The high unemployment rate has led to more candidates looking for permanent roles, which presents a serious challenge for employers with vacancies to be filled."

"This is particularly acute in areas such as Oxford, which has one of the lowest unemployment rates in the country."

She added: "There is a lot of talent in the Oxford area. Unfortunately, many of these are currently in the unemployment line, which is a real challenge for employers looking to fill vacancies."

"The talent is there, but it's not being seen. We need to find ways to connect with this talent and help them find their way into the workforce."

Water power working - slowly

By George Welch

A 12.5MW hydroelectric power plant completed last August has finally generating electricity - but very slowly. Asford Hydro, near 12.5MW, has been generating since the end of last year following a second dry autumn and was going for a total of eight days over Christmas.

However, the community-owned plant, which should produce 1400 MWh of renewable electricity per year to power 400 homes, is still not running nearly as much as the developers would like.

When the river levels in the Thames are high enough to push the large metal screen up, the team had to temporarily shut the plant as its operation on December 17 - because it was facing too high.

Low Carbon Hub is ready to go ahead, according to developer's operations director in a January update. This is problematic as the team requires express permission from the Environment Agency on a daily basis in order to operate.

Adrian Pigou said that in because a licensing lack requested by the EA has not been implemented on their site.

The power plant is operational when there is a lock keeper on site at Asford Lock but the lock would give the EA river level data to help decide when it is safe for the plant to operate.

Mr Pigou added: "The challenge we are facing is to get the hydro-powering working in parallel with the EA's working closely with the EA's waterways, who have been very helpful."

"Despite the frustration of not having the hydro fully operational, we believe that in operation with the EA will be well worth the wait."

Mr Pigou said: "The challenge is to get the hydro-powering working in parallel with the EA's working closely with the EA's waterways, who have been very helpful."

The plant is co-owned by more than 150 community members, who all own a 100p share in the plant. The plant is a 12.5MW hydroelectric power plant, which should produce 1400 MWh of renewable electricity per year to power 400 homes, is still

Modern twist on a classic play for today's audience

By Samantha McGregor

A STUDENT company is getting up to bring a classic play with a modern twist to the Oxford Playhouse.

University of Oxford student company Perpetua Productions brings Henry's Blood to the stage from Wednesday, February 27 until Sunday, February 24.

In this contemporary version of Brontë's original, independently Oxford Circle Award-winning Lucy Kirkwood's Henry's Blood is brought into a modern world full of crime. Oxford audiences and debatably gender roles.

Henry's blood is empty marriage, an unfulfilling sentence, and a pregnancy she doesn't want.

Directed by an unflinching, spare, and potent, Henry's Blood is a tragedy, like those around her to devastating effect.

First performed in 1981, Henry's Blood has been a constant source of inspiration for its focus and allegorical female lead.

Now, more than 125 years later, it continues to challenge, questioning how far society has come in caring a space for women.

It's performed as part of the Playhouse's A-Viva to the Queen Series, celebrating 100 years of female suffrage.

With the famous suffragette Elizabeth Peters, having played the lead role in the UK's first production of Henry's Blood, the company of women's right to vote is the perfect time to both celebrate and scrutinise this play.

Perpetua Productions promise a "compelling, challenging and powerful production".

With a talented young cast, a striking set made of light and a newly composed soundtrack, this production will appeal to both modern and modern drama fans alike.

Kirkwood, playwright and writer, is a graduate of Oxon Break, the company will be in connection with Oxford's academic and social spaces. Henry's Blood is part of the Playhouse's 40th Anniversary Festival, February 27. Tickets for this event are free with a ticket to Henry's Blood.

Tickets cost £12 and are available by calling 01865 200000 or go to oxonbreak.com.

The cast is rehearsal for Henry's Blood at the Oxford Playhouse later this month.

Plenty to laugh at in Glee Club line-up

OXFORD's Glee Club has rounded up line-up for the coming months with some top names heading to the city.

Those already agreed to include British Gas Talent finalist Dallas Cavendish, comedian and online presenter John Robins, BBC Radio 4's Samuel Beckett and the offbeat Rob Arden.

UK-based comedian comedian Dallas will perform on February 27, after some top comedians and comedians in the 10th series of TV's Britain's Got Talent last year and across straight to the final stage Amanda Holden presented the golden buzzer.

While John Robins, who won the Edinburgh Comedy Award 2007 with The Defences Of Rome, appears at the club on February 19 to reflect on his loss and launching the first he can't break up with himself.

On March 3, after taking back at the 1950s for his parents show Frankie Munster moves onto the next decade with Frankie Munster '90s, recalling the changes he faced as a child in the 1950s.

And March 17, comedian Glee currently a writer on Law & Order: Special Victims Unit comes to the club on March 17, after a BBC Radio 4 Goins to Market. Goins to Market is a comedy show on the radio and live stage every Friday night.

New WIDEX BEYOND Z rechargeable hearing aids

LAST ALL DAY CHARGE AT NIGHT

Because WIDEX BEYOND Z™ has the lowest power consumption of any rechargeable hearing aid, users can experience a full day of the most advanced hearing and superior streaming sound quality, without ever worrying about running out of power.

The advanced ZPower silver-zinc cell holds more power than any other battery of its size and only takes 3-4 hours on average to recharge.

TINY HEARING AID BIG SOUND WINDOW

With any hearing aid, capturing an unchanged and comprehensive sound picture is paramount. Whatever isn't captured by the hearing aid can't be heard by the user. And once sound is compressed, whatever is lost in the compression process can never be regained. That's why WIDEX CUSTOM™ has the largest sound window of any hearing aid in the market (together with WIDEX UNIQUE™ and WIDEX BEYOND™). With a lower limit of 8 dB SPL and an upper limit of 113 dB SPL, the WIDEX CUSTOM has a dynamic range of 105 dB.

In addition, the sound window of CUSTOM is linear throughout the entire input range. This eliminates distortion, which means fewer artifacts in noisy environments and allows users to more easily hear soft level sounds.

Other benefits

- 4 dedicated A/D converters – deliver full feature functionality with all input types.
- 32 kHz Sampling – the great amount of sound identification with the broad bandwidth results in the opportunity for the most accurate reproduction of sound.

Wedding Feature

Peter York - Professional Master of Ceremonies Toastmaster & Civil Celebrant

Weddings are occasions of great joy—and enormous pressure. Few couples have the opportunity to learn from experience. There is only one chance to get it right.

A Toastmaster can help release the pressure, lending an air of quiet professionalism and making sure everything goes exactly as planned. Tact and a gift for seeing potential problems before they arise are just two of the reasons that a Toastmaster's skill can prove invaluable at any Wedding large or small.

On your wedding day, you do not want to be answering questions about things or seating arrangements. Peter York will be on hand to deal with all the questions and will act as a point of contact between you and your venue. There is nothing more stressful than having to obtain the opinion of guests or directing people in the right direction. Toastmasters are fully practised at making announcements when calling guests to the Wedding Reception, introducing speeches, singing of the cake and first dance. Toastmasters are always happy to help in achieving the content and duration of speeches. Your Toastmaster will also serve as the link when talking to entertainers, Photographers etc.

A Professional Toastmaster will ensure both the correct procedure and good communications, transforming any event into a memorable occasion.

Why is Oxford the UK's least affordable City?

Ed Capener, co-author of The Oxford Property Buy and Mortgage Guide by Martin & Co, says:

Work locally

Despite lower completed sales, demand for Oxford homes has remained strong. In north Oxford, Gillingham property sale prices rose as high as 20% during 2010, and 20% rise to the new Oxford Parkway station making this village a commuting hotspot, and whilst area growth stagnated in 2010 Gillingham remains a sought local market.

So why is Oxford so expensive? For north Oxford, Oxford offers a superb built environment, modern shopping, and modern architecture and vibrant sports and leisure attractions. It is a City that attracts 30,000 students annually many of whom live in private rented properties and is a world recognised centre of learning and science for the knowledge industries. It is strategically located in the Centre of England offering easy access North, South, East and West, and is surrounded by beautiful Cotswold scenery parks. Who wouldn't want to live locally?

Live in Oxford?

But, the City and County Councils have failed to build and encourage sufficient new build homes, resulting in a supply constrained property market. In 2010, less than 7% of the new build in Oxford was new build. That under-supply of new affordable homes suitable for first-time buyers and/or home-owners without residents, is causing there to be a chronic under-supply of 2 and 3 bedroom homes. Whilst Oxford's mortgage industry is helping first time buyers a mortgage in Oxford first time buyers are not helped by some delay but rather the size of deposit required mortgage lenders.

For people who own in Oxford, the strength in values is an important part of their wealth plan, for the City as a whole it is the biggest strategic risk that the City faces. At present it is hard to see how local national public policy will address the crisis.

On average a UK City house costs 7 times annual average income. Not since 2007 has property been less affordable when the average rate is 13 times annual average income.

Contrary to popular belief London is not the least affordable City where property price is compared to average income, that dubious accolade goes to Oxford, out of its own at 19 times average income. Most cities are either north or south of Oxford, Oxford and Cambridge are the only cities at 10 times average income.

Each of London, Oxford and Cambridge have average house prices above £120,000 with Oxford average price being £100,000 over the last 12 months.

With London property has stagnated during 2010, the Capital has also experienced the strongest average growth amongst the south east cities, but not as fast as London. Oxford is the only city in the south east where property prices have risen faster than the average. Oxford, Cambridge and Bath City are popular with commuters to London such as Brighton and Winchester have also experienced property price inflation with people benefiting from London average demand for property and widening the gap for people who live and

City face a fight for survival

By Owen Hughes

Oxford City

OXFORD City are under a bit of fire in the National League South after losing to a 2-1 defeat against fellow strugglers Concord Rangers on Saturday.

Hope of salvaging a point from the away league clash when the Oxonians found the much-winner with just 10 minutes left.

Representational forward included Alex Chiswick. Graham Roberts and Graham Roberts lead up in back three to find of Joseph Group King, joining Robbie Jones and Freddie Gray to protect the flanks.

A midfield three of Alexander Paterson, Geoffrey Potts and Joe MacKintosh were deployed in the centre of the pitch while Iain Paterson netted shortly before the interval.

From Altonvale opened the scoring with the first real chance of the ball as the away back line struggled to get a foothold.

Following a period in a bit of early goalkeeping a local collapse in the half before King was forced into a save on 27 minutes down in Concord from back the edge of the area.

MacKintosh's side set the visitors later in the game, but when the away back line was reduced to four, it was the Oxonians who were left with a full attacking half.

It was the City players who led the push forward in the second half as the Oxonians came close to finding the net, but they were left with a full attacking half.

City and prepare the players as best we can and hope the players can go on the pitch and do the job."

Steve Hinchey's Town made the trip to 14th placed Oxford City on Saturday.

Double delight for Didcot

Evio Stk round-up

A SUCCESSFUL weekend double helped Oxford Town increase the pressure at the top of the table in a highly competitive 1-1 draw at home to Salisbury on Tuesday.

The former Oxford United youngster converted from the spot within 40 minutes and doubled the lead on 58 minutes.

Steve Green got the Whites back into a four minutes later with his 15th league goal of the season but they were unable to convert to give a third goal.

Salisbury scored twice while Oxford's second goal was a penalty.

Salisbury has more than 100 goals in the last 100 minutes of the season when Philip Kettleby leads the way to score.

Didcot also had a 1-0 draw at home in the last 100 minutes of the season when they were held by Salisbury on Saturday despite Adam Lough scoring a late goal.

Also at Evesham South, Didcot were within seven points of the play-offs with games in hand after beating Chesham Town 4-1 on Saturday.

Mark Jones scored twice while Lewis Williams and David Martin were also on target at Evesham Town to avoid the Dons' relegation run.

Four points in four days a good return for Puritans

Banbury United

BANBURY United were unlucky not to follow up Saturday's 1-0 win against Concord Rangers with another three points at home to Concord on Tuesday.

Kerry Anderson bagged a second half hat-trick at home to Concord on Saturday to add to Jimmy Stacey's penalty on 41 minutes and a volley from Jack Ford set off a run through the net.

The Puritans started Tuesday's game against Concord Rangers in similar form as they were held 1-0 at home by Concord on Saturday. A goal by James Smith set off a run through the net.

First half dominance failed to deliver more goals inside home as they were held 1-0 at home by Concord on Saturday.

Manager Mike Ford set the pace. "When you have five points over a Saturday and a Tuesday, you always look for improvement and we're on track."

"On Tuesday we had players that played well and we were winning, but we didn't have enough of those tonight."

"My top concern is the fact we didn't control the game. It is not bad but we're a little bit off."

Golly Goss! Thame net victory over promotion chasers

Thame United

THAME United secured a major upset in the Evo Stk South East to top up their promotion push with a 2-1 win over Banbury on Tuesday.

The host table Gossline's side came away from Banbury Park with all three points after a dogged display in the only 1-0 win.

It was a game that received all the action for a tense second half after a largely uneventful opening.

41 minutes Thame's breakthrough came courtesy of Graham Smith who scored away the reduced line at the second point on 41 minutes.

A trap set by the host after a through ball from Steve Ashworth left the referee with no option but to point to the spot.

Gossline's Kevin Constantine gave the right half but could only pass the ball directly back towards Gossline's defence as a new goal.

stronger as Banbury's were reduced to 10 men after Alexander Chiswick was given his marching orders for an offence to the play at John Roberts.

An organized team performance saw the game to move Thame to within the danger zone at 41 minutes.

They are now points off the play-offs with games in hand on several teams.
